GLOCK™ AIRSOFT

In 1982, Gaston Glock took the conventional wisdom for manufacturing steel frame pistols and replaced it with revolutionary thinking and design elements. 41 years later, GLOCK™ firearms are available in numerous calibers and configurations and are the go-to sidearm for police and military agencies around the globe. Umarex® owns the exclusive license to create GLOCK™ replica airsoft guns for the North American recreational shooting market.

Tracers allow airsofters to track the flight of their BB in low or no-light situations to improve accuracy. The new Elite Force EyeTrace is the first tracer unit to be incorporated into the initial design of airsoft guns. Located inside the hop-up, the EyeTrace unit can be turned on or off - depending on playing conditions. When on, it provides a constant light to illuminate the BBs which ensures the brightest glow. As more airsoft venues require orange tips to remain on players' airsoft guns, the EyeTrace units prevent the need to add after-market accessories that obscure or remove this safety feature.
